The purpose of this book is to change thinking about crises and risk. Risk management is today both a great success and an impressive achievement and a notable failure. It works and it doesn't work. It saves lives and property and it fails to save lives and property. It helps and it hinders. Like all such management approaches, this has a lot to do with how it is employed and practiced. But in the case of risk management, there is also a much more fundamental issue: the risk management framework the risk management model is wrong. Many organisations today treat all risks as point events when the real risks involve systemic threats inherent in the global economy and the uncertain nature of global society. The book argues that risk management has come a long way but that evidence of its more recent failure is now all around us and that it needs to now change dramatically if it is to accommodate current realities. Whilst there is a clear need for us all to manage risk through a crisis, there is a lack of understanding of the nature of crises that is impeding progress as well as providing a conceptual basis for changing the way risk management is undertaken. The book provides a blueprint for managing at organisational level through a global crisis and to a more limited extent at government and other levels how to prepare what to do when it's happening and how and when to emerge into the post-crisis world.

Points of Grace: Empowerment for Hard Times answers many profound questions: Why does God seem like a hard man to some people? Why are we incapable of crying out to God in authentic ways except during times of extremity? How does God get past our self-defense mechanisms? Does God accept us as we are with our sins? Have we messed up so badly that there is no fixing it? Can we honestly face our feelings of remorse, bitterness, anger, fear and insecurity? Is it possible to have a biblically based assurance of our being truly born again? What good is outward obedience if our hearts are lustng after the things of the world? What do we do when we don't feel like doing what we know we ought to do? Why would God want to restore our miserable lives when He could let us die? This book helps readers understand how God's grace works in the life of the believer, illuminating the practical steps needed for an authentic relationship with God. It is illustrated with the author's own experience of rising from the darkness of doubt and self-loathing into the light of honesty and assurance.
